Fellow Baboons – happy fast-moving 2012 to you all. I hope you are all keeping up and enjoying the journey. So the year has started with a bang and following the AGM we have a few new faces on the committee ready to tackle 2012.

Firstly I’d like to thank those who were on the committee last year for a stellar year and all their efforts. Secondly following the AGM I’d like to welcome our new general members – Sophie Halpin and Allana Kenny – and our student-elected representative, Tessa Moody. 2012 is looking to be a packed year again for St Ann’s and the Collegians are already in the process of organising the first mentoring dinner which will be CSI themed.

Following the AGM it is important to note that financially the Collegians are sitting pretty suavely despite the economy and are looking to make a donation to College this year.

On another note the beginning of the year is also the time when the committee gets to meet with the Collegians Award winners and learn a bit about these fabulous students. We were certainly very impressed by their enthusiasm for College and life and wish them all the best this year.

Well that’s it from me, I’ll let the rest of the newsletter cover the adventures of the Boons.

All the best to our first-year Boons, remember, keep going! The pace is fast but the rewards are worth the effort. To those of you out and about in this big world, stay safe and happy and enjoy the opportunities 2012 holds.

Grunt out

What shares does the Collegians Association actually own?

The Collegians Association currently owns 10,352 shares in Argo Investments Ltd (“Argo”) and 6,868 shares in Australian Foundation Investment Company Ltd (“AFI”).

What do those companies actually do?

Both of those companies invest their capital in the share market. This is a way of diversifying the Collegians Association’s risk with the shares because both of these companies invest their capital in many large blue-chip listed Australian companies.

What has happened to the value of those shares over the previous 12 months?

Unfortunately the value of those shares has fallen. We along with every other investor look forward to more prosperous times in the stock market.

Does the Collegians Association receive dividends?

The Collegians Association receives dividends from both Argo and AFI. The dividends received from Argo are re-invested through a dividend re-investment plan and the dividends from AFI are received in cash.

What are the main expenses of the Collegians Association?

The main expenses of the Collegians Association are as follows:
- Scholarships
- Newsletter preparation including purchasing envelopes, mail costs and printing
- Wine to be consumed at each of the two mentoring dinners including wine gifts for the mentors who give up their time to attend.

When was the last time shares were sold?

The Collegians Association last sold shares in July 2009. This money was used to pay for the new heating and cooling system installed in the St Ann’s College Library.

How else does the Collegians Association receive funding?

The main way funding is received is by entry fees payable when students leave the College. Currently this amount is $50 per student.

The Founders Day celebrations were held on 21 September 2011. The program started with the traditional laying of the holly wreath on the grave of Sir Josiah Symon. This was followed by a thanksgiving service in the oratory at St. Ann’s College. All readings, prayers and playing of the organ were performed by current students of the College.

After the service the invited guests viewed a spectacular display of art. This included drawings, paintings, photography and modelling. These were true masterpieces of art, giving a glimpse of the amazing talent we have at St. Ann’s!

This was followed by a formal dinner. The Fellows of the College were dressed in their fabulous robes at high table, giving the dinner a very solemn atmosphere. During the dinner Dr. Rosemary Brooks gave an articulate speech on the amazing history of the College and the significance of Founders Day. Dr. Brooks also thanked the various benefactors of the College, whose generous donations have made subsidised living available for students of the College.

Last, but in no way the least, the guests were treated to a live performance of singing, dancing and playing of instruments by the students of the College. This also included performance from the students who won the Battle of the Bands for St. Ann’s in 2011. Each and every performance was simply superb and a great way to conclude the evening.

Founders Day, as always, was a memorable evening. I think of it as a great mixture of reflecting on the past, experiencing the talent of the present and looking ahead to the future of the College.

St Ann’s has been home to a very busy bunch of boons this year – it seems we haven’t stopped moving since O’Week! No sooner had all the fridges, suitcases and boxes been lugger across college and into empty first years’ rooms by helpful seniors, than O’Week had kicked into full swing. 2012’s O’Week was more than a little nostalgic for all the 90s kids amongst us, with a ‘Nintendo’ theme, paying tribute to Mario, Donkey Kong and Pokémon, to name a few.

Tutors treated us to their home brew (and a few tribute Whitney Houston tracks) at Tutor Show on Sunday, and on Monday, College Club presented one of the biggest nights of the year – Port n Choc.

Buddy night on Tuesday saw more male than female collegians in tutus, with the theme of “Create your own Nintendo character”. Wednesday had collegians scrambling across North Adelaide to win the Amazing Race – solving clues, re-enacting Pokémon battles, and gobbling down ABs, while being introduced to the neighbourhood at the same time. Thursday was as classy as ever, with a “Princess Peach’s Ball” themed pub night at the Ox.

As I write, the mid semester holidays are approaching at an alarming speed, but not before the spills and thrills of volleyball and debating, and the first SAAUCC pub-crawl of the year. I commend all boons for getting involved in College life so far, and can’t wait to see what the rest of the year brings.

The Foundation was established in 1986 to provide financial assistance to the College Council in order to develop and improve the academic standards, to endow bursaries, to develop and improve the buildings and facilities, and to preserve the existing facilities and property. During 2012 the Foundation concentrated on updating the College’s security. New electronic gates were installed and a new perimeter wall is due to commence construction imminently.

Funds for these projects were sourced through a matching/pledge campaign. This was a successful campaign raising a total of $39,000, which enabled the work to commence.

The Foundation, on behalf of the College, is extremely grateful to our very generous benefactors and a small discreet plaque will be attached to the new wall, to celebrate and honour our donors.

This year the Foundation is targeting the IT facilities within the College. The intention is to upgrade and augment the existing equipment by providing the very best IT support possible.

By targeting a particular project each year, the Foundation’s fundraising efforts are focussed and driven, ensuring the Foundation serves its charter and makes a significant and tangible difference in the lives of our students.

We look forward to establishing a strong bond with the Collegians as opportunities to work toward common goals present themselves and to that end, we are grateful for Collegians Committee Representative Kara Story’s presence and insightful input, as she serves on the Foundation Executive Committee.

Did you know?
If everyone on our mailing list sent the Foundation $50 it would cover the cost of the new wall on Brougham Place.

In September the Collegians hosted our second mentoring dinner for 2011. A diverse group of students studying everything from arts to music and medicine enjoyed the opportunity to learn from our guest speakers.

Daniel Krips (00-3) is a solicitor who spent several years working in Tanzania in the private sector. Daniel spoke of the high level of adaptation of his skills from his studies and remarked how well his education had prepared and enabled him for this adaptation. Daniel impressed upon us the many amazing opportunities available in places one may never have considered working in.

Sarah Chapman (06-8) spoke to us as a final-year medical student. She took the opportunity to work in a hospital 300km north of Bangkok as an elective. She spoke of a 2,000-bed hospital, where most patients were housed in the corridors. The expectations upon students in this hospital were high with students working 10-12 hours every day. Sarah described her experience as a phenomenal opportunity for skills development.

Sionnie Kelly (09-11) spoke to us from Phnom Penh as a current College student studying journalism. Sionnie took up the opportunity to teach English to primary school students in Cambodia. Sionnie was looking forward to what lay ahead of her on this adventure.

David Price is the Assistant to the Principal – Pastoral Care at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart. In his early years of teaching he spent 2 years relief teaching in London’s Emotional and Behavioural Disorder Schools. He found that his education held him in good stead to adapt to the unusual working environments. His overseas experience has helped advance his career and has been looked upon favourably by his colleagues. David encouraged us to have the courage to be open to every opportunity thrown our way.
